

Jack o' Lanterns, Spooks Ready

Carving a big pumpkin into a jack o' lantern for Halloween fun tomorrow is Terry Moore, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Moore, 80 Dallas. Terry's eight-year-old sister, Linda, passes on advice to him from the sidelines.

Frightening spectres on their way to a Halloween masquerade party are Zoe Hobson and Jim Gort, dressed in costumes made from a couple of pairs of old "long Johns." All sorts of weird characters, witches and hobgoblins will roam the streets tomorrow night as Greater Victoria youngsters enjoy their annual trick-or-treat Halloween excursions.

Socreds Can Capture Ottawa In 1957, Low Tells Party

BY RAY BAINES
(Colonist Staff Reporter)

VANCOUVER—The Social Credit party can elect a government in Ottawa in 1957 because "it's there for the taking," national Social Credit leader Solon said last night.

The fiery Socred leader spoke to more than 650 B.C. Social Crediters, winding up their two-day convention here with a huge banquet in the Vancouver hotel.

"We are going to make a right good effort to get it in there in 1957," Mr. Low told the cheering Socreds. "If we fall in the next few years to install a Social Credit government in Ottawa it will be because we fall in our duty. It's there for the taking."

Football Dandy—So Were Girls

STANFORD, Calif. (UP)—Seven touring Russian footballers saw their first game of American football yesterday, a lopsided 34 to 0 victory by Stanford University over San Jose State College, and commented they thus far the girl cheerleaders were the loveliest they had seen. Like many others in the crowd of 33,000, they trained their field glasses on the girls during much of the first half.

Kampov-Polevsky said he was surprised that the pom-pom girls were students and added, they were "very pretty."

Saar Names New Premier

SAARBRUECKEN (AP)—Heinrich Welsch, a 67-year-old railroad man, was named caretaker premier of the Saar by its parliament today. His selection represented a compromise between pro-German parties and the groups which control the present parliament.

A. C. Bennett as a possible alternative to himself. He said that the question of leadership would be decided at a national convention.

"I have never stopped to worry about who will have the leadership," he said. "I have never stopped to think about becoming the prime minister."

Mr. Bennett, becoming prime minister, "The people of this movement will select their leader."

He then said that Social Credit's political enemies were trying to "sow the seeds of distrust" by suggesting a split between the two of them.

"They are saying 'Watch out, Mr. Bennett wants to be prime minister,'" Mr. Low said. (At this point Premier Bennett threw back his head and laughed heartily.)

Earlier Premier Bennett said a Social Credit government would not only be elected soon in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, but that "Mr. Low will be elected prime minister of Canada."

In the main body of his address, Mr. Low called Social Credit "the greatest movement ever conceived on this earth outside of the movement of Christianity itself."

He said farmers, labor and industry had "lost hope in the Liberal government" and that the only difference between the Liberals and Conservatives was that "one is in and the other is out trying to get in."

He said the present government was typical of the "old line of politics of the pork barrel, patronage and skulduggery."

"It is not democracy. It is autocracy," he said. "And Social Credit is determined to tip the autocracy from its throne."

At one point he outlined a six-point manifesto, which he said Social Credit could offer as an alternative to the present system. It included a new agricultural policy to give farmers 20 per cent of the national income, a new concept of Dominion Provincial Relations, a new kind of resource development, a new concept in social security, a new financial and economic system "to free people from the slavery of debt," and a new and different idea of political organization, based on principles and integrity.

Earlier B.C. Social Credit League president Noel Murphy called Social Credit "the greatest revolution in human thinking since 1838" when Britain was given the franchise.

Both Premier Bennett and Mr. Low were given a standing ovation by the large crowd of Socreds.

Molotov Under Fire

Anti-NATO Pact Rejected by West

GENEVA—The Western powers Saturday night rejected Russia's anti-NATO pact for "collective European security" as a peril to the West.

Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov came under heavy criticism at the Big Four foreign ministers' conference on the charge his proposals would "deceive the hopes of the world."

U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles told the Russian diplomat his attempt to push through a security pact while delaying any effort to achieve German unification was in violation of directives the summit conference laid down three months ago.

Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay of France protested that Molotov's security pact continues to be aimed at the dissolution of NATO, the Atlantic defence alliance.

"The French government will not gamble with security, or do deals about it," Pinay declared.

Despite 7½ hours of debate in three sessions since Thursday, Russia and the West have made no dent in Europe's status quo.

Russia will not roll back from the Elbe line—the cold war front in mid-Germany for 10 years.

The West will not bargain on the dismantling of the Atlantic alliance, in which more than 400,000 U.S. troops and airmen are committed overseas.

Russia will not risk a unifying German election that could put anti-Communists in control of that powerful nation of 70 million.

The West will make no deal for German unification that would concede in advance the military neutralization of all Germany. It has two-thirds of Germany arming in NATO now.

One delegate said fluoridation was "socialized medicine in the extreme."

Victoria MLA Lydia Arsenault was right in the thick of the discussion, one of her favorite topics.

She said fluorides had a "detrimental effect on the minds and bodies of the consumers" and what she particularly didn't like was the "undemocratic, dictatorial phase of this vicious propaganda."

Fastest-Growing Area

Projects Sprouting Along New Outlet Worth $8,000,000

$1,500,000 Shop Centre Is Latest Development

BY ALEC MERRIMAN

Construction projects valued at more than $8,000,000 have either started or are projected on property bordering the Island highway between Tillicum and Admirals roads.

It makes this area the fastest-growing part of Saanich, which has been called Canada's fastest-growing municipality.

Latest plan for the area is a $1,500,000 shopping centre to include a Safeway store and about 25 other stores, but lack of an access road from the new highway and a sewage disposal system may hinder this development.

Other projects include 240 homes in the Westview subdivision, valued at $2,550,000; the $750,000 Colquitz junior high school now under construction; a $100,000 auto court proposed by Morris Kersey; a $1,000,000 forest laboratory which the federal government may build; a Standard Oil service station at the corner of Tillicum and the Island highway, which is already started; and an Imperial Oil service station at the corner of Interurban and Burnside.

The Rowland Height subdivision in the area has 125 new homes and a new Texaco service station has been built at the Burnside intersection.

To serve the rapidly expanding area, Saanich is considering building an $80,000 sewage disposal system on Colquitz creek on property already set aside for that purpose.

Main promotion of the area is being undertaken by Capital Land Developments Ltd., which owns 240 acres from Tillicum to Admirals on both sides of the highway.

Joe McAllister, president of the company, told The Daily Colonist last night that the provincial government turned down an application for access roads off the highway.

The company will seek the aid of Saanich council in persuading the provincial government to allow the roads.

Mr. McAllister explained that he felt the new highway actually started when it left Saanich and that up to that point it should be developed as a part of Saanich municipality.

Saanich council will also have to approve rezoning of the property if a shopping centre is to be built, but little difficulty is foreseen there.

Safeway has already purchased property at the Tillicum and Burnside end of the land, on which it plans to build a $300,000 store.

Capital Land Developments has optioned two acres adjacent to the Safeway site and behind the Tillicum Outdoor Theatre, to two unnamed persons, who are understood to be planning a $1,000,000 shopping centre.

On this property would be 20 to 25 stores of all varieties, including doctors' and dentists' offices, a bank and other services.

The plan would be to have a one-way access road off the Island Highway through the shopping centre to the Safeway store to Burnside road.

This would eliminate use of the dangerous Burnside intersection by shoppers.

Plans have not yet been made for use of the remaining 36 acres of property along the south side of the highway to Admirals road, but Mr. McAllister said it was planned to develop it as commercial property.

A good start has been made on the Westview subdivision, with about 75 of the houses either completed or under construction. These are being built by private individuals, and by contractors for resale.

Saanich council has already set aside property for a sewage disposal plant to cost about $50,000, and will likely discuss the question Monday night.

Mr. McAllister said last night he hoped Saanich would install a sewage disposal plant to serve the area.

"You can't put commercial property there until you have a way to dispose of the waste," he said.

He said a sewage system would be "a help to everyone in the area" and would serve all the Interurban road and Rowland Heights area, the new school and Westview subdivision.

Mr. McAllister said at a public meeting that it is dangerous for Canadians to think that curtailments of rights and freedoms that have taken place in other countries can't happen in Canada.

Cypriots Stone British

FAMAGUSTA, Cyprus (Reuters)—Two thousand students, shrieking anti-British slogans and demanding "Enosis" (union with Greece) today threw stones at British troops in this port city.

Troops and police took up positions outside two schools as students streamed out of their classrooms in a demonstration of protest against military intervention in similar demonstrations Friday.

One soldier was slightly injured. A bomb was thrown at a British military vehicle outside Paphos during the night but did not explode, authorities said.

Socreds Unanimously Against Fluoridation

By Colonist Staff Reporter
VANCOUVER—The B.C. Social Credit League made it clear yesterday that it is unanimous on one subject—its hearty disapproval of fluoridation.

The convention unanimously endorsed a resolution calling for a plebiscite for any municipality wishing to fluoridate its water, requiring a 80 per cent majority and six months' notice.

One delegate said fluoridation was "socialized medicine in the extreme."

Victoria MLA Lydia Arsenault was right in the thick of the discussion, one of her favorite topics.

She said fluorides had a "detrimental effect on the minds and bodies of the consumers" and what she particularly didn't like was the "undemocratic, dictatorial phase of this vicious propaganda."

Free Hunting Licences Urged for Blind Pensioners

By Colonist Staff Reporter
VANCOUVER—Social Crediters in convention here yesterday endorsed a resolution urging free hunting licences to blind pensioners.

This was only part of the resolution. It resolved that the government "grant free hunting and/or fishing licences to applicants who are old-age, handicapped or blind pensioners."

One delegate said he hoped "the blind hunters had seeing-eye hunting dogs."

The mover explained that so far as the blind were concerned, the resolution was intended really to provide them with free fishing licences, a pastime which many enjoyed.

This led a woman delegate to denounce soft drinks and the companies which produce them. She said that if "you take a human tooth and drop it into a bottle of pop, it will take the enamel off."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

THE HON. TOM IRWIN, Speaker of the B.C. legislature, is not a silent man. Inside and outside the House, he is a fluent Speaker. As chairman of the legislature, he has to be impartial, but voices his opinions in a clear and positive way.

and sometimes wrong.

At the Social Credit convention, he helped defeat a resolution that called for a Hansard—a printed record of debates—in the provincial House.

He felt that the recording of legislative debates would empty the public galleries.

Mr. Irwin certainly has hold of the wrong end of the mace this time.

Masses of people refuse to read even the shortest political news story. Some people (younger ones, in particular) cannot be persuaded to read anything at all. They look upon reading as hard, dull work, and shun it.

Naturally—to use a familiar escape clause—I am not referring to the well-informed, clear-thinking people who buy this newspaper. An American columnist expressed it very neatly. "I don't mean you," he said. "I mean that other sap."

Those others are a lot. A great many of them who happily attend the debates of the House to watch the show, wouldn't read a political news story if it was printed with perfumed ink on edible paper.

In view of this indifference, Mr. Irwin's idea of spectators playing hookey from the legislature so that they can go home and curl up with Hansard is richly humorous. He should tell it to Bob Hope.

Can you summon to the inner eye a vision of a man buried in Hansard at the breakfast table, or a housewife walloping a child with one hand and turning the pages of the debates with the other?

If you can summon stuff like that to your inner eye, call the doctor. Your picture tube has a bug in it.

No, Mr. Irwin I'm afraid the only way we could win any large readership for Hansard would be to print it in the form of a comic book, with a catchy title, "Wack Bennett and the Timber Runners," or something of that kind.

This title is for demonstration purposes only, and is not to be reproduced without the written permission of Mr. Bennett, M. J. Coldwell, H. R. Macmillan, myself (how did I get in with a bunch like this?) and the Crown Zellerbach Corporation.

As I say, many of those other people simply will not read. I'm thinking about a lady of my acquaintance, who claims that she reads a certain Vancouver newspaper. The Daily Blot, we'll call it.

This lady tries to needle me by talking about the stories and pictures she sees in the Daily Blot.

"Did you see that photograph of the two-headed rabbit in the Daily Blot yesterday?" she enquires.

"Yes," I reply. "As it happened, it was the same picture we used the previous day." But I have given up pointing out facts like this. The lady obviously does not believe me. I look upon her with the greatest respect. She is a fine woman. If she wants to needle me about the Daily Blot, she is welcome. It makes a nice hobby for her.

The other day, however, she mentioned a story in this newspaper.

"I see you wrote a piece about Pat Sinnott the other day," she said. "I haven't had time to read it yet."

"Three weeks have passed since then," I ventured. "If you want my frank opinion, I doubt if you will find time to read it."

Her indifference to the printed page is matched only by that of a lady I wrote a story about, some months ago. This lady is a friend of mine, and I have the greatest respect for her, too. But I couldn't help grinding my teeth with infantile rage when she phoned me the day the story appeared, and said: "People are phoning up about that confounded story. I haven't a copy of the paper. What did you say about me, anyway?"

I replied (trying to avoid biting off a mouthful of the telephone receiver) that she had better buy a copy of the paper, and read it for herself. I wonder if she did?

Inner Cabinet To Function For Adenauer

BONN (AP) — West Germany will be without the leadership of ailing Chancellor Konrad Adenauer until early next year.

Government leaders plan to set up a special inner cabinet to handle his responsibilities during the months he is convalescing from bronchial pneumonia.

The 70-year-old chancellor has been ill for more than three weeks. His doctors predict he will make a complete recovery but hint at a long convalescence.

On Saturday Adenauer's Christian Democratic party postponed its annual convention—originally scheduled for November—until "early next year."

Commercials Big Hit on British TV

LONDON (NANA)—The British version of "Person to Person" is called "Personal Call." I watched reporter Frank Owen call on comedienne Hermione Gingold, but I still prefer Ed Murrow . . . In London they invite people to write to the press about their TV hates and here is one little printed epistle about a top TV personality: "I suggest that Macdonald Daly be thrown to the dogs."

One of the most-talked-about shows here is Art Linkletter's "People Are Funny," but people were furious when a house was deliberately demolished in one of the series. Of course, the owners were getting a new one, but that didn't matter.

Houses are so scarce here that to destroy one was a shocker.

The big hit on the new commercial shows is the commercial. They love them here! As one taxi driver told me, "They trained us to receive them, and they're not long enough to annoy us. And it's good for the BBC to have competition—they've been giving us absolute rubbish long enough." There'll be a third station in February to give the BBC added competition for the 4,000,000 sets now in use.

This will be sad news for Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz, but "I Love Lucy" is not the huge hit here that it is in what they call "the States." And this is why, I was told: "England is a completely masculine country. There's no time for women comedians." . . . Situation comedies like Joan Davis' "I Married Joan" are considered wrong for adults, but have large kid audiences Sunday afternoons at 5.

Liberace goes over just as big with the girldie group here as he does in America. And he doesn't offend Englishmen who compare him to long-time smiling idol, Carl Brisson . . . American shows like Jack Webb's "Dragnet" they can take or leave—mostly leave. "When we get such good live shows, why look at film?" they argue . . . But it doesn't matter what George Burns and Gracie Allen do—Britons eat it up.

The rudest man in British television is Gilbert Harding. He reserves his cruellest quips for co-panel members. Recently, the old boy reduced author Helga Moray to a heap of tears when he tongue-lashed the unhappy lady, right on camera. Everyone who could write wrote into protest . . . Another thing they don't like here are giveaway shows, like the $64,000 Question. It's considered bad taste to parade emotions in public.

Orson Welles' "Sketch Book" did very well, until he became impossible to get hold of . . . And finally, I went out to see Richard Greene's "Robin Hood." It was a big Elizabethan feast scene, with stuffed suckling pig, roast peacock washed down with mead, and pretty wenches to serve the goodies.

That's England . . . on TV.

Rose Wood Should Be Cut

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Rose Pruning (S.B., Victoria)

Rambler roses bloom only from wood of the previous season's growth, and as this wood is useless after it has produced a crop of flowers, it should be removed close to the ground as soon as possible after the flowers are finished. The young shoots of the current season's growth are then thinned out and tied to the supports.

The true climbers, as distinct from the ramblers, need only to have any dead wood removed, and enough of the old branches thinned out to prevent them from becoming too thick and congested. This much can be done at any time of the year. Then, all laterals should be cut back to a strong bud, and I prefer to do this portion of the pruning in early spring, when the buds can be readily distinguished.

Moss Lawn (D.J.M., Victoria)

I, too, noticed that article in The Country Guide describing the lawns of Sagina subulata in Australia, but I have read criticisms elsewhere of these moss-like lawns stating that they become patchy, and require a great deal of upkeep and constant rolling to prevent it from becoming hummocky.

However, if you would like to try it, seeds may be obtained from Thompson & Morgan Ltd., Ipswich, England, for one shilling per packet. It is best sown in a greenhouse or cold frame, and the small plants set out in the lawn site 3 inches apart.

Rhododendrons and Hydrangeas (A.R.M., Royal Oak) I am inclined to think that the reason your rhododendrons are dropping their leaves is poor root action, which may be due to ungenial soil, or soil which is too dry or too moist. I find that a mixture of lime-free coarse sand and peat moss mixed with the fill-in soil at planting time a great help to vigorous root action.

A heavy mulch of half-rotted leaves, renewed annually, will steady the moisture conditions and preserve the acidity of the soil. Malathion is a good spray to control insect pests.

Hydrangeas are not nearly as fussy about their soil as the rhododendrons, and will thrive in either acid or limy soil.

However, only the pink, white and red varieties will be produced on limed soil—the blue ones will turn pink unless the soil is kept on the acid side.

In nature, the hydrangeas are always found growing along the edge of woodland, or in open forest glades where some direct sunshine filters through. In dense shade, they will grow, but usually refuse to produce any flowers.

Moss Spruce (D.B.H., Victoria)

The parasite feeding upon your blue spruce is most likely the Red Spider mite, a tiny creature almost invisible to the naked eye, but one which does an enormous amount of damage through its sap-sucking activities.

This pest is immune to DDT—in fact, serious infestations often follow DDT treatment, as the natural enemies of the Red Spider mite are killed off. It thrives and multiplies under very dry conditions, hence the improvement in your tree after you had wet it down regularly with the hose. However, if you want a more positive control, spray three times with Malathion starting about June 15, with the second and third sprays ten days apart.

Wandering Jew (E.L., Victoria) It is quite normal for your Wandering Jew to produce flowers, although these vines rarely flower under the poor conditions in which they are usually grown. There are two kinds: Tradescantia fluminensis, with white flowers, and Zebina pendula, with leaves striped on top, purple beneath, producing pink or purplish flowers.

Clue to Hitler's Death Sought at Lake Bottom

NEW YORK (NANA)—Despite a series of "exclusive disclosures" on the fate of Adolf Hitler, the most recent of which has come from the Fuehrer's valet, the Austrian government is seeking for a possible clue to it at the bottom of an Alpine lake.

Attempts are being made to raise the wreckage of a German aircraft shot down in Atter lake, near Linz, in Upper Austria, as the war neared its end. The machine is believed to have had large quantities of gold, precious stones and currency aboard, together with highly important documents relating to Hitler's last six days in the Berlin bunker.

Czech's Ordeal

'Soviet Hero' Flees to U.K. After Amazing Experiences

LONDON (NANA)—Living secretly in London is a "Hero of the Soviet Union"—the highest Soviet decoration—who has just escaped to England from behind the Iron Curtain. He is believed to be the only recipient of the high honor to flee to the west.

To make his escape, Maj. Josef Bursik, a Czech, had to leave two of his four children behind the Iron Curtain. Two of his younger children, one an eight-month-old baby, are living here with him and his wife, who also escaped.

Major Bursik, now living with friends, said he was decorated in the presence of Stalin at the Kremlin. Only five other foreigners who fought with the Russians ever received the award.

"At last in England I feel safe," Major Bursik said, "although I have lost my two children and have little prospect of seeing them again."

FLED FROM GERMANS

"At the outbreak of war I was a regular officer in the Czechoslovak Army. Then came the seizure of my country by the Germans and the attack on Poland.

"To escape the Germans I fled to Poland, and then to Russia, where a Czech brigade had been formed. Throughout most of the war I fought as commander of this brigade with the Russians against the Germans.

"I was taken to Moscow, where I was made a Hero of the Soviet Union. Later I was sent to Moscow to the Lenin school for training on special work.

"But all the time I realized that unless I became a Communist and agreed to my country remaining a Russian satellite my fate was certain.

"In 1949 the blow fell. I was arrested and charged with treason. After a mockery of a trial I was sentenced to 10 years imprisonment.

"After much suffering I made my escape with the help of friends."

Protest to Molotov

Reds Tackled On Arms Deal

GENEVA (AP)—British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan protested informally to Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov Saturday night the Soviet bloc arms sales in the Middle East tinderbox.

British informants reported this after the two ministers met privately after a session of the Big Four conference.

The British statesman's complaint was directed specifically at the deal between Communist Czechoslovakia and Egypt.

Molotov's reaction to the protest was not disclosed.

The British minister reportedly went on to warn Molotov that Soviet bloc arms peddling in the unstable region where peace hangs on a slender thread in no way conforms with the so-called "spirit of Geneva."

The British action came after Western officials spread word that the United States, Britain and France were considering early public reaffirmation of their five-year-old pledge to act against any Mid-Eastern aggressor which sets out forcibly to upset the region's existing frontiers.

Theologian for Wedding; Princess Given Souvenir

SYDNEY (AP)—One of Australia's foremost Anglican theologians, Archdeacon Thomas Chatterton Hammond, said Saturday Anglican bishops have no authority to prevent the marriage of the Royal Family to be involved in any way in a divorce question.

"But I do not believe bishops have the slightest authority to prevent the marriage of an innocent party."

"In the 17th, 18th and 19th centuries, bishops had charge of matrimonial cases and were permitted to grant 'bed and board' divorces (a form of separation) on the parties concerned giving an undertaking they would not remarry.

"But by English law of that period appeal could be made to the House of Lords for the complete dissolution of the marriage or divorce as we now know it."

"Several such divorces were granted and in every case rediscreditable for a member of the Royal Family to be involved in any way in a divorce question.

Geneva Talks Bogged Down On Vital Issues

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER (meeting to begin seriously resolving their differences on

Union and the Western powers squared off yesterday for a propaganda battle over German unity and European security—with no prospect that they will be able in the present Geneva

Justice Stumps Officer

NEW YORK (AP)—A Brooklyn policeman Saturday night failed to win $100,000 on a television quiz—the biggest cash prize in history of TV giveaways.

Detective Sgt. Barney Arluck was allowed, however, to keep $3,000 he won last Saturday on the NBC-TV "Big Surprise" program.

The $100,000 question asked of Arluck dealt with criminal law and was written for the program by U.S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

Arluck was able to answer only the first of four parts—to define the ordeal used by early American courts to force an accused person to plea.

He called it "strong and sustained punishment."

He missed on the year the practice was ended in New York State (1772); whether a court or Congress first ordered federal judges to enter a plea of innocent for persons who declined to plead (Congress); and whether the U.S. Supreme Court affirmed or reversed the conviction of a man after records showed that he did not enter any plea (affirmed).

The Big Four foreign ministers' conference, at the end of its third day, already has developed a stalemate so complete on unification and security that diplomats say it is impossible to believe practical negotiations can be undertaken in the near future. In such circumstances, the arguments made by the foreign ministers here logically will be directed not toward changing each other's minds but toward rallying public support, particularly in Germany, for their respective positions.

Each side now is prepared to argue that its own plan for Europe and Germany affords the best hope for assuring peace.

THE OUTLOOK

Behind the propaganda fight—the existence of which neither side officially admits—appear to be contradictory diplomatic strategies which shape up this way:

1. The Western powers believe they may eventually persuade Russia to accept German reunification on Western terms if they apply firm and patient pressure over several years. They reason Russia needs a period of peace and international goodwill and the Russians will, if necessary, pay a considerable price for it.

2. Russia for many months has been manoeuvring to obtain a truce in the Cold War to relax world tensions, put the Western powers off guard, weaken the North Atlantic alliance and concentrate on its own internal economic problems. Having achieved considerable relaxation of tension, especially since last July's conference of Big Four government chiefs, Russia's tactics now are to hold what it has gained without giving up any territory or position of great value.

OPINION IMPORTANT

World opinion is important for both sides.

The Western powers may employ it as a means of pressure to inch the Soviet Union toward agreement on what they want.

However, it probably is more important for Russia just now. Relaxation in the Western camp is almost entirely a matter of public opinion, and a reversal for the Soviet Union in this field could wipe out the gains they have already made.

Yachting Awards Presented at Rally

Members of the Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association, together with guests from the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, were on hand last night for the annual awarding of prizes and trophies.

North Atlantic Treaty

WESTERN powers are not likely to abandon the North Atlantic Treaty, the one thing that has brought some form of a balance in the disrupted relations of the world. It came into existence primarily because Soviet Russia refused to disband her wartime strength in armed forces. NATO is assurance that in any renewed outbreak of aggression with world domination as its object the Western powers would act as one, instantly. Had such an assurance been given early enough in 1914 or again in 1939 two world conflicts might have been avoided. As matters stand the North Atlantic Treaty is the keystone of necessary defence organization in Europe, with the pledge of American backing. That is a powerful deterrent to any recurrence of the madness of "domination," and it will not be argued or wished away.

For its part, Russia is entitled to adequate assurance that a rehabilitated

Germany will not suddenly develop another Hitler and resume the century-old chant of conquest. France and the smaller nations of Europe need the same guarantee for equally good reasons. The hocking and the heiling and the marching brought nothing but heartbreak and misery to the world. The same alternative as in 1938 in a very real sense is before the Geneva conferees today: guns or butter. For the sake of humanity it had better be butter. The world has grown a deal too small for its guns.

Soviet Russia would be making a serious mistake if it treats the Geneva meeting as a market for further horse-trading. The free world cannot afford to relinquish one iota of its present defence build-up until definite actions on both sides of the Iron Curtain have paved the way for that. Of one thing the Kremlin may rest assured: no Western nation today is thinking in terms of world conquest. Can it say as much?

Commercializing Christmas

EVERYONE knows that Christmas has become big business, stimulating domestic trade to a degree that would have astonished earlier generations. Few people realize, however, the extent to which Christmas also has become big business within business itself. Where once the exchange of Yuletide gifts and messages was kept within the family and its circle of friends, today it is a recognized part of commercial and industrial practice adding millions of dollars to the cost of doing business.

This year Canadian firms large and small will spend an average of $907 each to wish business associates and customers a Merry Christmas in gifts and greeting cards. For some this item of the Christmas budget will run as high as $10,000, apart altogether from what is spent in decorations and special displays. The majority of the gifts will range in value from $2 to $10, and in some instances the gift list will contain as many as 4,000 names.

These are some of the findings of a survey conducted by Marketing magazine, the first of its kind in Canada, which has discovered also that while 25 per cent of Canadian firms regard the custom as bribery, the remainder recognize a large Christmas gift and greeting budget as a normal item of expense. Of course it all helps to put more money into circulation and benefits domestic trade in general; but it reflects a mercenary attitude towards the season of good will tending to detract from its religious significance. More and more the real meaning of Christmas is being overshadowed by commercialism and competition to out-do one another in the number and magnificence of gifts exchanged. The mere fact of Christmas business being reduced to statistics and averages is one more piece of evidence of a trend which many people find distressing.

The 'Lady's Purse'

THE Canadian Scottish will henceforth forswear the familiar long hair sporran, substituting instead a white leather pouch. Only the pipe band and officers in certain dress will retain the traditional type of military sporran. A sporran is simply a pouch, of course, providing a handy receptacle for the wearer since a kilt has no pockets. In the case of civilian Highland dress what is known as a day sporran is recognizable as a skin pouch, usually brown in color.

The change is not likely to create any furore here, but it did when first introduced among Highland military units in Scotland a year or so ago. There were loud cries of protest, with the new-type white leather pouch being contemptuously described as a prettied-up lady's purse. The regiment to which the Canadian Scottish are allied, the Royal Scots, was among the first to adopt the new sporran, but on public parade it soon proved that no he-man quality had been lost. Pictures of Highland units so arrayed suggest in fact an even smarter appearance than before.

Apparently the Canadian Army's Highland-type regiments are merely following the latest military pattern. There is nothing to indicate that the neat white leather pouch will not find favor among men in the ranks. They should be much easier to keep clean for one thing, and for another to keep in proper position. Military sporrans have not always hung as uniformly as might be desired, with a consequent depreciation in the appearance of the unit concerned. Trim and tidy, the white pouch should make things easier for its wearer in this respect, and look colorful into the bargain.

Island Editors Say

Take Away the Licences

We feel that the only way to teach adult motorists a lesson is to take away their licences for serious traffic offences.

To some people a car is a means of transportation, to some a necessity but unfortunately to others it is a toy to be exploited to the full extent of its powers regardless of the attendant danger.

These people love their toys and like children who shed tears when their toys are taken away as punishment they would be deeply hurt if they were denied the right to use them.

We feel that the only way to cut down accidents. Take these mentally underdeveloped children in adult bodies off the roads and give them time to ponder the foolishness of their ways.

Extend the Season

There's sound logic in the suggestion by the Associated Chamber of Commerce of Vancouver Island that all member groups assist in an effort to extend the tourist season on Vancouver Island.

Old Sol has burned down on many an outdoor event held here in June and September, and those who arrive for a holiday in those months have a far better choice of accommodation. There is also a peace and quietness during the off-months which does not always prevail during the hustle and bustle of mid-summer.

All Island chambers would be well advised to go all-out in their efforts to publicize some of these key points.

North Saanich Nimrods

Many residents have assessed the immediate results of the tremendous influx of nimrods into North Saanich and, if the Review has analyzed the situation properly, the consensus is that this should be the last time such conditions are tolerated.

Saanich and Central Saanich municipalities have both banned shooting. We are not one bit critical of the councils of these two municipalities for arriving at this decision. But the immediate result has been a substantial increase in the number of shooters who are "enjoying their sport" in North Saanich. In some cases the results are unbelievable and appalling.

This newspaper has always defended the privilege of sane shooters to enjoy their sport. But the time has unquestionably come when some severe restriction on shooters in North Saanich should be put into effect.

—SIDNEY REVIEW

Plight of the Fishermen

It seems to us the federal government should be able to find some means of extending unemployment insurance coverage to commercial fishermen.

It may be argued that there men are "private operators" since most of them work for themselves and therefore cannot be considered "insurable" by the ordinary standards of the Unemployment Insurance Commission. At the same time the wages some of them make are far below those of "employed" working men. This is particularly true of the past summer which has been a poor one for the commercial fishermen.

Many members of parliament, as well as organizations and individuals are currently asking the federal government to consider the plight of these fishermen, many of whom are going to have a tough time supporting their families this winter.

Let's Finish the Job

Only about $10,000 more is needed to put the Ladysmith and district hospital drive over the top. There is no doubt now that this amount will be collected, but there is also no reason why the campaign should be prolonged any further. There are still more than enough people in the community who have not even been approached to bring the fund up to its objective if they all subscribe their share.

If these people would come forward and volunteer their donations without waiting to be canvassed, the drive could be wound up in a week and the small groups of canvassers would be able to stay home with their families instead of tramping the streets in the rain.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

I AM assailed for suggesting that the Church of England was founded by Henry VIII, and a pamphlet has been sent to me by a high local ecclesiastic in order that I might correct my views. Coincidentally a reader sends me another church pamphlet bearing on the same subject.

It is claimed that Henry sought an annulment and not a divorce, which to me simply begs the question. The object is the same in both cases; namely, to be freed of a wife.

I am enjoined to remember that history depends on who writes it. This is so true. Personal bent, disposition, bias, affect all historical writings. I hope it won't be deemed impolite if I suggest however that ecclesiastical historians may be subject to the same disabilities in this respect as secular historians.

If I might venture further it would be to say that we must all derive our knowledge about Henry from reading, and reading is an accomplishment which may be enjoyed by laymen no less than by churchmen. The implications of the Magna Carta (1215, three hundred years before Henry) are drawn to my attention, specifically the first clause which says "The Church of England shall be free." This is emphasized as proof that the church was free, independent and national even in ancient days.

One cannot dispute the language of the Magna Carta but if the church were autonomous and free it does seem strange that Henry should find it necessary to ask the pope for permission to annul his marriage in order to secure another wife.

And that Henry should have caused the English parliament to declare him as "protector and supreme head of the church and clergy of England," and enact that all recourse to the bishop of Rome would be regarded as illegal.

This latter appears to be historical fact, also, and not fiction.

I have read the two pamphlets mentioned, diligently. Of necessity I must compress the argument but I think it is fair to say their gist is that the Church of England began long before Romanism in England, that when Henry VIII broke with papal authority religious observance went on unchanged. The Church of England remained the same church, with the same buildings, the same clergy and the same people. It ministered to all alike. Rome did not excommunicate its adherents until 36 years later, in the reign of Elizabeth.

It was, in brief, a reformed Church of England but still the same church. It is surely permissible to conclude, nevertheless, that it gained a new orientation, that it was given a fresh source of direction which in time caused it to be distinct from the Roman Church.

In this sense, therefore, Henry VIII founded a new church. The pamphlet sent to me by a high local ecclesiastic begins by describing as a "Roman Catholic gibe" the statement that Henry founded the Anglican Church. Well, it happens I am not a Roman Catholic, nor did I cast a gibe. I sought merely to show the rue of fate that linked Princess Margaret and Henry VIII in the matter of marriage.

Let us concede, however, if you like, that Henry did not found the Anglican Church but simply reformed it, and that its continuity goes back to the early missionaries to England. The irony of marital circumstance in the royal domain still exists. The Anglican Church is the bar to a state marriage for Princess Margaret with Group Captain Townsend because the latter is a divorced person, and 400 years ago Henry VIII, through the agency of that same church, secured his desired divorce—or annulment, whichever one likes to term it.

Letter from London

Dollars on a One-Way Street

By RICHARD L. THOMAS, Daily Colonist Correspondent

THIS seems to be a world of weird anomalies—but nowhere more weird than the realms of international exchange. If, for example, I want to go to Russia just for the fun of the thing with no business motive and no idea of doing anyone any good, the Bank of England will be pleased to let me have £100 worth of roubles to spend there. I gather that they would not go very far but at least it would be some money in my pocket. If I want to go to Australia, New Zealand or South Africa I can take just as much money as my bank balance will allow—there are no restrictions.

But what if I want to go to Canada? If I want to go for the fun of the thing there is nothing to stop me going. I can pay my fare both ways in sterling. I can buy my train meals in sterling—but if I want to buy a newspaper somewhere between Halifax and Victoria I shall have to engage in one of two unpleasant transactions.

I shall have to persuade someone to give me some dollars for the £10 in English cash I am allowed to take out of the country in notes. Although I am not supposed to sell them in Canada it is not an illegal transaction in Canada so with luck I may be able to collect about $27 from some good samaritan. But if no one wants to buy my pound notes I shall have to rely on charity for my newspapers and hope to heaven it will not be necessary to spend a penny.

If I can find some relative I have not seen for more than two years the Bank of England will permit its fount of sentiment to bubble over to the extent of allowing me $95 with which, presumably, I give my relative a whale of a good time, stay at all the best hotels and finance a luxury trip from one end of Canada to the other—possibly taking my relative with me. My only other hope is to convince the Bank of England that I have immense business prospects in Canada in which case they will be pleased to consider a business allowance of dollars which may be anything or nothing.

The result of all this governmental manipulation is that it is far more difficult for a Briton to travel to Canada than to Russia. He may go to China or Burma, Portuguese Africa or the French Pacific—but not to Canada. If he wants to settle there arrangements can be made—but if he wants to visit there he has to make his plans for personal charity.

all this despite the fact that visiting Canadians pour millions of dollars into the Bank of England by changing their holiday dollars into sterling.

It is a strange commentary on Commonwealth affairs that Canada, one of the nearest and greatest of Commonwealth countries, should in effect be the most difficult to reach. We can fly there in a few hours—and fly back again. But we must not stay except as a poor relation dependent upon Canadian friends or business acquaintances.

The absurdity of the situation of course is that it is as easy as pie to drive a coach and four through all the regulations.

There is nothing to prevent me borrowing some money from a friend in Canada this year and repaying him in sterling when he comes to England next year. All it means is that there is no "official" exchange. Instead of me going to the Bank of England to collect my dollars and my friend going to his bank to collect his sterling my friend gives me some dollars and I give some sterling.

No doubt such a transaction is regarded officially as being very naughty—but there is nothing which can be done about it. There is as yet no law which makes it illegal for a Canadian to lend money in Canada or a Briton to lend for repay money in England, and if the two governments tried to do something about it an impossible situation would arise because obviously British law could not affect a Briton outside the jurisdiction of that law, and a Canadian government could hardly make it illegal to lend dollars.

It was only recently that the exchange control was relaxed sufficiently to enable permanent settlers to take their assets with them, but it is surely not less important that Britons and Canadians should be able to get together as and when they are able to afford it? It does not help Britons to be always the poor relation scratching for dollars—nor does it help enterprise to deny a man with a speculative mind the opportunity of going to see what opportunities there are in Canada. It is also wrong to prevent Canadian friendships except on the basis of one-way traffic—that only encourages a British inferiority complex. But there is stubborn resistance to creating a possible "leak" in dollars.

The exchange controllers argue that it is impossible for practical purposes to differentiate between Canadian and American dollars because the two currencies are readily interchangeable in either Canada or the United States. If some sort of preference was given to Canadian dollars there would be nothing to prevent them being turned into American dollars, and the time is not yet ripe for convertibility. No matter how much the restriction is regretted on sentimental grounds practical considerations are paramount, says officialdom.

It seems rather fatuous suggesting that we must increase our dollar exports and then making it as difficult as possible for anyone to get to dollar countries. The Bank of England seems to forget that big businesses were once little businesses, that the little fellow may still be able to find an opening on a new market but would find it difficult to prove it in advance on an exchange application form. Indeed more than one of our smaller manufacturers has told me that he has left the dollar market alone because of the difficulty of getting there to find out what they really want—exploratory trips are frowned on officially and the business-cum-pleasure trip which so often yields unexpected results is impossible to Canada without the co-operation of Canadian friends. Unless you happen to have them the treasury, through the Bank of England, seems to be determined that you should not try to make Canadian friends—except by getting them to come over to this country.

And somehow it seems pretty shoddy to expect the other fellow to call the drinks and be looking the other way when it is your turn to pay!

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

THE father of my nephew, who is a relative of mine only by marriage, was giving his 20-year-old son some counsel with regard to choosing a girl for his wife.

"Son," he said, "I have only one piece of advice to give you. Marry a girl who has had her appendix out, and who owns a fur coat already."

If parents confined themselves to witcidisms of this sort in the matter of their children's affairs of the heart leading to matrimony, how happy a world it would be. It is generally supposed that young people fall in love and marry as the result of the random arrows shot by Cupid, a fat little dimpled irresponsible with hardly any clothes on. We cherish the illusion that love is blind, love is gloriously unimpeded and impulsive. But if the truth were known, many a fat little figure bearing no resemblance to Cupid plays a far more active part in the love affairs of the young; and that is the mother of the boy. And many a lean and unprepossessing figure, looking more like the god Vulcan than any companion of Venus, sticks his fire tongs and poker into the affairs of the girl. My nephew came to me with his father's injunction.

"Holy smoke!" he protested. "What a mercenary attitude!"

"Well, do you want my advice?" I supported. "Pick a girl who can cook."

"Aw!" said my nephew, bitterly. "Yes, and," I warmed up. "It has been my experience that brunettes can cook better than blondes. Most blondes go in for what they call casseroles."

"Uncle Greg?" interrupted my nephew.

"Yes?"

"What about falling in love? If you are in love, can you go looking around at frying pans in the girl's kitchen, or see if she's got an appendix scar, or go snooping through the clothes closets to see if she has a fur coat?"

"Fortunately," I confessed, humbly, "no."

"No."

"No."

"No."

Gold in the Street

IT was a quiet Halloween in Victoria. 25 years ago: only six false fire alarms, 16 street lights broken in Esquimalt, and a number of gales gone adrift.

An army and navy revolt overthrew the government of Brazil. But that was no prank. President Washington Luis, vice-president Mello Vianna, the entire cabinet and leading senators and deputies were arrested. A military junta took power.

Premier S. F. Tolmie officiated at the opening of a new public market in Duncan.

Lord Birkenhead, famous British lawyer and former Lord Chancellor, was dead in London.

CAZAR Nicholas 50 years ago signed a constitution which theoretically granted the Russian people a degree of democratic government, the right of assembly, free speech and the right of habeas corpus.

He abandoned the title "Autocrat of all the Russias," and supposedly agreed to become a constitutional monarch.

The action followed several days of mass strikes and riots in Moscow and St. Petersburg.

"VICTORIA may yet turn out to be a regular Cariboo (gold field)," the Colonist observed, 85 years ago.

"Yesterday afternoon some workmen employed in sinking a well on Colinson street, came to a streak of blue cement and gravel, a pan full of which was found to contain 30 cents' worth of gold."

"One piece alone weighed 25 cents. Two-bits to the pan is an excellent prospect. What is stranger still, this prospect is just at the base of church hill, and in the immediate vicinity of the spot from whence was taken a specimen of gold-bearing quartz the other day. The well is 18 feet deep."

"The old tree that has for many years waved its topmost branches high above the northeast bastion of the Fort was yesterday cut down."

"It made a great noise when falling, and several timid individuals, supposing that the dreaded powder magazine belonging to the Company had at last blown up, rushed hatless into Government street."

"Lawyers' offices and stores were vacated in a trice, and for a few seconds people seemed quite alarmed."

They Love the Drain Pipes

'Teddy Girls' Play Big Role In London's Juvenile Trouble

LONDON (NANA)—'Teddy Girls' have risen in the ranks of Britain's teeming teen-age delinquents to take workers believe is a trouble-making role.

For two years this nation has endured an increasing rash of violence from the young male delinquents—dubbed "Teddy boys"—whose clothes, and in some cases, morals, are inspired by their Edwardian dandy ancestors.

The typical Teddy boy wears "drain-pipe" trousers, wide-shouldered, high-buttoned jackets with velvet collars and—the ultimate hallmark—hair worn long in a pompadour.

What worries Scotland Yard is that the narrow lapels often conceal a length of spike-studded bicycle chain, and that the velvet-collared jackets frequently have fish hooks, useful for slashing an adversary, attached to the cuff. The youth's arsenal also contains knives, razors, daggers and often guns.

lure of this resplendent plumage irresistible—and the boys have found the girls a new reason for delinquency.

Capt. Hetty Hill, whose work in the Salvation Army brings her into contact with many young delinquents, says: "Teddy boys' clothing doesn't attract me in any way. But this certain class of clothes does attract the Teddy girls."

Whereas one girl used to attach herself to the leader and become the Maid Marion of the gang, feted and protected by its lieutenants, today dozens of girls, attracted by the Edwardian garb, attach themselves to a youthful mob.

WORSE THAN BOYS

According to the Rev. Douglas Griffiths, a Methodist who runs a club in London's slums, the Teddy girl is even more of a problem than her male consort.

"She tends to get all the fun and little of the consequences," he said. "She makes dates with members of rival gangs and then gets the age-old kick of watching the boys fight it out."

In other ways, too, the Teddy girls play an agitator's part among the male delinquents.

Mr. Griffiths, whose parish is one of the toughest in London, believes the current "Teddy" craze has gone deep into British society.

"We have razor gangs in this neighborhood," he said. "They used to dress shabbily and slouch. They used to have a single girl to each gang—the leader's girl."

But when such a gang goes "Edwardian" the girls—and the crimes—multiply.

Inspector Fabian of Scotland Yard agrees with most professional observers, that London's teenage problems are due to lack of discipline in the home and the absence of boys' clubs. "Our juvenile courts have gone absolutely soft," he commented. "They mollycoddle instead of letting the punishment fit the crime."

Beer Intake Heavy

Aussie 'Wowzers' Few, Far Between

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Australians believe that beer is best—and prove it by drinking probably more per head than any other people in the world.

Government statistics show that Australians drink an average of 24 gallons a year of the heavy, potent local brew. Sir Arthur Fadden, the federal treasurer, commented in his budget speech that this consumption brings the government £21,364,800 in taxes.

The increase in Australia's beer drinking is a post-war phenomenon. Fifty years ago, the average Australian drank only 12 gallons a head. In 1932, the figure was still 12 gallons a head. But by 1949, it had risen to 18 gallons and last year it was 24.09.

The post-war demand for beer took many breweries by surprise. At Christmas, in the hot Australian summer, beer was short and for a time bottled beer was almost unobtainable.

BLAME PROSPERITY

Why Australians are drinking more beer is a question which statistics cannot answer, but social workers believe that one of the main reasons is the continuing post-war prosperity. Wages, they

Milk Cows, Zippered Rabbits Novel Christmas Playthings

NEW YORK (NANA)—Santa Claus will bring some startling new toys this Christmas for junior and sis.

Little sister can get a cow with rubber udders that can be milked. Or a rabbit with a zipper stomach from which little rabbits emerge. She may also get a toy toaster that doesn't heat but simulates the household toaster's pop-up action.

For junior, to help teach him that personal appearance is a necessity of life, one toy manufacturer will feature a pint-sized shoeshine kit, complete with rag, brush, dauber and polish.

And, if the young man has any thought of eventually taking up the tonorial profession he can have a "professional" barbering kit that includes a small barber chair, shaving mug, brush, plastic razor, comb and mirror.

There is also a tool kit, scaled down to fit the younger generation, which includes hammer, plane, screwdriver, chisel and saw. As in other recent years, reports from the Toy Manufacturers of the U.S.A., Inc., an industrial trade group, show that toys this Christmas will imitate the new wrinkles of the adult world.

Some new cars of the pedal type, for example, will have wide wrap-around windshields and the flush-fender lines of the newest adult automobiles.

Rumors Still Persist That Forest Firm Sold

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Ever since B.C. Forest Products received forest management licence No. 22 from the B.C. government some weeks ago, there have been persistent rumors that the company is likely to change hands.

It may be mere coincidence that the rumors and the rumors have followed one another. It may also be the case that E. P. Taylor, eastern business magnate who controls B.C. Forest Products has no intention, or even thought of selling.

Yet there is no doubt the forest management licence has made BCFP a lot more attractive and it is reasonable to believe that there are competing interests who more than ever would like to take the company over, management licence and all.

The sale of companies after being granted licences have happened before, and unless some government action is taken they could happen again.

When the U.S. firm Crown Zellerbach made its offer to Canadian Western Lumber it also took over the forest management licence (15,000,000 cubic feet a year) held by Elk Falls Company.

TOOK OVER LICENCE

Last year another U.S. firm Rayonier, bought out Alaska Pine and Cellulose, taking with it the 18,000,000 cubic feet a year forest management licence covering part of the northern end of Vancouver Island.

As a result of these deals, large tracts of Canadian Forest land have passed into the remote control of U.S. operators and despite stringent regulations under which forest management licences are granted, the removal into foreign hands is known to have set up local delays and irritations.

It might be interesting too much to private enterprise to suggest that the government should issue licences on the un-

Too Parsimonious

British Rap Own Neglect Of Culture

LONDON (CP)—Britain, a country generally regarded as one of the more fortunately endowed nations culturally, draws a sharp rap on the knuckles for its "parsimonious provision" of funds for the arts.

The hard-hitting annual report of the Arts Council, state-subsidized organization in charge of such things, says Britain could spend £1,000,000 annually in the next 10 years on theatres, music, opera, art and ballet.

It complains that it is 25 years since London built a new theatre; that two small ones have been constructed elsewhere and 120 have closed.

THEATRES OBSOLETE

Coveat Garden, national home of Britain's opera and ballet, is "obsolete and inconvenient." Sadler's Wells is located far from the main streets of London, it says, and the Old Vic, where the finest Shakespeare productions in the world are held, is also "meanly sited, inconvenient and obsolete."

Furthermore, says the report, so are a lot of the lesser concert halls, theatres and art galleries. And the main entertainment houses which draw public support could probably raise their prices to lessen the state financial burden.

But, paradoxically, the report warns that it would be as dangerous to spend too much on the arts as it is to skimp. There aren't enough first-rate singers, actors or musicians to staff too many enterprises, it says.

"A hundred civic theatres manned by second-rate professionals would not create a renaissance of drama in Britain, but 30 exemplary theatres manned by first-rate actors eventually would."

MUNICIPAL TRICKS

It decries what it describes as the tendency by local authorities to plump a civic theatre "check by jowl with the new town hall, the fire station, the technical school, the youth club and the shopping centre."

"The living theatre should not be indiscriminately included in this municipal box of tricks . . . the birthrate of white elephants must not be encouraged."

THE VOICE OF ONE

By FRANK S. MORLEY

A young man was fired from a job the other day. His employer praised him as one of the best men who ever worked for him. But his past caught up with him. It was not a sordid crime. It was stupid rather than wicked. For that crime he paid in full. But not only does he continue to pay. His wife and children have to pay. Should he have a second chance?

What does it mean to call our society "Christian"? If anyone asked what a Christian spirit was, would you not reply, "A forgiving spirit?"

Jesus made forgiveness a condition for knowing God. "If ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you." Every Sunday morning in his South Sea home, Robert Louis Stevenson conducted family worship. One morning he began the Lord's Prayer then rose from his knees and left the room. Alarmed lest he be ill, his wife followed him. "Is there anything the matter?" Stevenson replied, "I am not fit to pray the Lord's Prayer today." He could not say, "Our Father . . . Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors."

Jeremiah's Message

That terrible prophet, Jeremiah, also spoke of God's love, "I will be their God and they shall be My people . . . I will forgive their iniquity, and their sin will I remember no more." Ezekiel promises God's forgiveness to the individual. "None of his sins that he hath committed shall be remembered against him."

Continually the psalms remind man, "The Lord is full of compassion and gracious, slow to anger and plenteous in mercy . . . Blessed is he whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered . . . Bless the Lord, O my soul . . . who forgiveth all thine iniquities." And Isaiah came closest to the spirit of Christ, "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow, though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool."

Pierre Corneille says that "Whoever pardons easily invites offence." Indeed an easy forgiveness implies indifference to right and wrong. But forgiveness means that we have no spirit of revenge, we harbor no grudge or desire to retaliate. Forgiveness means that we seek the other's welfare. Instead of enmity we have sympathy. We desire his re-creation and rehabilitation.

Beer Intake Heavy

Aussie 'Wowzers' Few, Far Between

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—Australians believe that beer is best—and prove it by drinking probably more per head than any other people in the world.

Government statistics show that Australians drink an average of 24 gallons a year of the heavy, potent local brew. Sir Arthur Fadden, the federal treasurer, commented in his budget speech that this consumption brings the government £21,364,800 in taxes.

The increase in Australia's beer drinking is a post-war phenomenon. Fifty years ago, the average Australian drank only 12 gallons a head. In 1932, the figure was still 12 gallons a head. But by 1949, it had risen to 18 gallons and last year it was 24.09.

The post-war demand for beer took many breweries by surprise. At Christmas, in the hot Australian summer, beer was short and for a time bottled beer was almost unobtainable.

BLAME PROSPERITY

Why Australians are drinking more beer is a question which statistics cannot answer, but social workers believe that one of the main reasons is the continuing post-war prosperity. Wages, they say, are high and have encouraged the spread of the beer-drinking habit.

The influential Sydney Morning Herald questioned in an editorial Fadden's use of the word "heroic" in discussing beer consumption.

"The Herald is not a wowzer," the paper announced. "It believes beer is a good drink and people have the right to drink it when they like. But it also believes that they should know when to stop. It is becoming increasingly doubtful if Australians do."

"Wowse" is Australian slang for a strait-laced person. Asking who is the "average Australian," the annual drinker of 24 gallons, the newspaper continued:

"Of our 9,000,000 people roughly 4,500,000 are women. Of our 4,500,000 males, 1,500,000 are under 20. Women drink very little beer and children under 18 practically none."

The great bulk of this vast ocean of beer is therefore drunk by some 3,000,000 men. And since many of these are non-drinkers and many more are moderate drinkers, one might guess that the real work is done by a comparatively small proportion of the total population."

Masked for Interview

Dancing Cigarettes Keep Under Cover

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Television's dancing cigarette packs unveiled themselves for an interview this week, but continued to hide their identity behind face masks. The only possible way to recognize them was by their shapely underpinnings—probably the best known legs in the country.

But why all the secrecy about their faces?

"It's a gimmick," explained King-Size. "We think it would spoil our act if everyone knew who we are."

"We're about as well known as any dancers on TV," Regular explained, "but our faces are completely unknown. We want to keep it that way and hang onto our jobs."

Filter-King added that even their best friends are unaware of their dancing careers.

RUMORS GO ROUND

Frequently a rumor goes the rounds that one or more of the girls is a famous ex-movie star or a girl who made the headlines in a famous murder trial. Another story has it that one of them is Dixie Dunbar.

All untrue, according to the masked dancers.

"Actually there are two sets of dancing packs," Filter-King explained. "The three of us about our legs."

work on Jack Bailey's "Truth or Consequences" for NBC and there are three other girls in New York on Herb Shriner's "Two for the Money."

The girls explained that the packs are equipped with ventilation holes and handles to steady them while they're dancing. A stick is provided to shove the giant-sized cigarettes out the top of the packages at the end of their dance.

"I catch myself smiling and humming it up inside the pack," King-Size laughed. "Maybe we can't be seen, but it's fun to act up a storm in there. Sometimes we talk to one another while we're dancing, or stick our tongues out at the audience."

KEEP HIDDEN

What of the future? Do the girls ever plan to unmask?

"We like things just the way they are," said Filter-King. "This way we have a wonderful future. Nobody will have a chance to get tired of our faces. And so far as I know, we haven't had any complaints."

A two-part tale of gallantry, romance and danger is Walt Disney's "The Story of Robin Hood," to be seen on Disneyland for the next two weeks. The outstanding adventure classic was filmed in England and features

Richard Todd in the title role, and Joan Rice as Maid Marian.

The first hour-long chapter of the Robin Hood story will be seen Wednesday at 8 p.m.—a new time for Disneyland—on channel 5.

This week will see a number of network programs being aired at a new time as

New York, New Jersey and Chicago finally end their extended period of daylight saving time. Most changes will be in daylight shows which are carried over the big networks, particularly on channels 4 and 11. Most morning shows will be seen one hour later from now on.

Most important change is the program "Live" for the first time. The big money show will be seen at 7 p.m. each week, beginning Tuesday.

Wins Plum Role

Truman That Is

Margaret Whistles On Radio Program

NEW YORK (AP)—"Margaret is going to become a homebody," says Margaret Truman. "No more late hours, except maybe once or twice a week."

This is because the attractive blonde daughter of former President and Mrs. Truman is assuming a full-time role as hostess of NBC radio's new daytime program "Weekday."

The Monday-through-Friday program which will run from 10 a. m. to 12 p. m. (Eastern Time) begins Nov. 7. Co-host with Miss Truman will be Mike Wallace, veteran radio and television performer.

LITTLE OF EVERYTHING

"We're going to do a little of just about everything," said Miss Truman. "We'll be interviewing, present news, spin some records."

We may do some drama. I'm even going to do some whistling. . . . Course I whistle. Nearly every girl learns to whistle. . . . No, I don't know yet whether I'll do any singing on the show."

On "Weekday," a new concept in radio programming which is somewhat similar to the NBC week-end Monitor program, some daytime programs will continue in their same time periods. When NBC Executive vice-president Robert W. Sarnoff announced the plan he said Nov. 7. Co-host with Miss Truman will be Mike Wallace, veteran radio and television performer.

ROLE APPEALS

The role of hostess on the program appeals to Margaret Truman because "I feel I'm going to make a lot of friends—people I'll talk to day after day."

"I very much like the flexibility of radio. In some ways radio is easier than television because there's no memorizing of lines, no bother with lights and cameras."

"But radio is a hard physical task master that goes on week after week. In television it's one show and then that's it for a time. But in radio there's always another show coming up."

In addition to her heavy radio schedule Miss Truman has several NBC television appearances planned under her present TV contract. Next Tuesday evening, for example, she will appear as a guest on the Martha Raye show.

All this means a heavy schedule of rehearsals. "And that means early to bed and early to rise," she smiled ruefully. "It's that early rising I've never learned to like."

No, I certainly never learned father's schedule of early rising.

"The other day a man at the agency called me and said, 'Hey, I caught your father on the Dave Garroway (early morning) show. How in the world did he get up that early?' I tried to explain that the Garroway show is LATE to father."

Returned PoW

Charged by Jews

DUSSELDORF, Germany

(UPI)—Dr. Carl Clauberg, recently returned from Soviet imprisonment has been charged with conducting medical experiments on Jewish concentration camp inmates under the Nazis.

The government has also called for John B. Guedel, the show's producer and Groucho's partner, to ante up $21,411 in back taxes.

Actor Lang, whose dancing and singing in "Kiss Me, Kate" on Broadway brought him recognition and the lead role in the revival of "Pal Joey," was asked to pay $10,520 for 1952 tax deficiencies.

The Internal Revenue Service said that Groucho, who really is Julius H. Marx, owed $68,100 for 1950-52. The agency claimed the National Broadcasting Company paid the funds, under a 1950 contract, 75 per cent of which were taxable as income, rather than capital assets, as Marx listed them.

SOLO PARTNERSHIP

Marx sold his partnership interest in the popular television show "You Bet Your Life" to NBC for $750,000, to be paid in an initial installment of $10,000 and then $74,000 a year until the full amount had been received. He said this should not be treated as regular income.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Television sets outnumber telephones on farms in Ottawa county, Ohio, a census bureau report indicated today. Estimating the situation as of last year, the bureau said there were 945 TV sets on the county's 1,392 farms, compared with 335 telephones.

"What's My Line?" will also become a cable show with tonight's program on CBS, to be seen at 7:30. "Lassie" will move up to fill the 6:30 spot vacated by the quiz show. Other changes are listed in the program schedules in the classified section of today's Colonist.

Johnny Weissmuller, one of the world's greatest swimmers, is featured in the new adventure series on channel 4, Tuesdays at 7 p.m. "Jungle Jim" is the name of the outdoor series.

This week's episode finds Weissmuller doing battle with giant lizards as he sets out to find a lost botanist.

Helping mothers to keep their babies healthy and happy is the object of "Baby Time," a new 15-minute program to be seen each Thursday at 12:30 p.m.

The program features Jane Warren, registered nurse and former head nurse at Chicago's famed Wesley Memorial hospital, and Dr. W. W. Bauer, director of the American Medical Association's bureau of health education.

"Baby Time" will be seen on channel 4, starting Nov. 3.

Vancouver's new TV musical, "Riding High," opens on channel 2, Friday at 9 p.m. The program will be seen on other Canadian television stations on a delayed basis.

Mario Prizak, producer of the show, has assembled a cast of well-known artists like Eleanor Collins, Don Francis, Pat Kirkpatrick and Ray Norris and his orchestra for "Riding High," as well as a new singing group called The Four Bits.

other Barrymore mementos lie, as a child. On the heavy gray dusty and unseen, in the back of a room of an auction house.

But Monday the public will have a chance to give the late Lionel Barrymore's personal possessions a home when they go on auction at the American Art Galleries.

Though Lionel was regarded the dean of American actors, he left a small estate when he died last year. Now the one-time wealthy star's attorneys are putting his mementos on sale to pay his back taxes.

"There's about $40,000 worth of things here, counting all these paintings," explained auctioneer Arthur Goode.

Arranged on tables were the once intimate belongings of the renowned actor. In one box were three wigs, two red and one gray, he wore on the stage. The skull, its lower jaw broken, was found in Barrymore's trunk in a box labeled, "Skull used by John Barrymore in 'Hamlet'."

Goode will sell hundreds of Barrymore's record albums and books, most of them on art, music and etching. His library also includes bound copies of

Canadian Singer London Favorite

LONDON (CP)—What an um-brella is to an Englishman, so for lead roles in the Broadway Vancouver-born Edmund Hock-ridge is to American musicals in London.

The barrel-chested baritone with the pleasant transatlantic accent and rugged good looks is tailored to lead roles in the Broadway imports — and British producers know it. In the last four years he has appeared almost non-stop in three top shows, "Carousel," "Guys and Dolls" and "Can-Can."

Now, the capable 36-year-old Canadian is set to pluck the plum of his west end career with the male lead in the Broadway hit "The Pajama Game," starting an assured long run at the Coliseum Theatre. Said Hockridge: "It is the sort of part that you wait years for and just hope and pray it comes your way, because it's really got everything."

He's on the stage throughout the 2½-hour show, singing live numbers and even doing a spot of polka and Spanish dancing.

Glittering Gina 'Oh Mama Mia' What a Figure!

Herbik Graham, well-known to Colonist readers for her inside stories on Hollywood stars, is at present on a visit to Europe. She writes here of the Paris scene before leaving to report on the deaths of the stars in Rome.

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

PARIS (NANA)—City of enchantment, falling leaves and terrible telephone service... I was introduced to Gina Lollobrigida at the Billancourt studios where she is starring with Burt Lancaster and Tony Curtis in "Trapeze". Gina was glittering in a golden sequin circus suit, very abbreviated. Mama mia, what a figure!

A cute custom on French sound stages the star has to shake hands with everyone on arrival and that sometimes consumes half an hour!

I can't wait to visit Olivia de Havilland on the set of "The Ambassador's Daughter," which she is making here. Dior is showing his new spring collection as part of Olivia's picture plot.

Rita Hayworth has instructed her lawyers to file suit for divorce from current husband, crooner Dick Haymes. She plans to stay here to make pictures so this makes Prince Aly Khan's chances appear slightly more than hopeful.

There's a new and beautiful blonde French star who just has to end up in Hollywood—17-year-old Marina Vlady. She's had offers, speaks English beautifully, but insists: "I want more theatre experience first."

Michelle Morgan is considered the best movie actress in Paris, which gives her the last laugh on Hollywood where she couldn't make the grade.

Preston Sturges, who wasn't doing well in Hollywood at the time he left there, is a big wheel in Paris, with a big production just completed, "The Carnet of Major Thompson."

Deanna Durbin, living on the outskirts of Paris, rarely comes to town and has absolutely no desire to resume her career.

I hear from Hollywood that Nancy Kelly's husband-to-be, theatre executive Warren Caro, is visiting her there. They'll wed right after she finishes "The Bad Seed" at Warners... Bing Crosby is reading the script of "The Wright Brothers." Henry Fonda is set to play one of the brothers... Eddie Cantor hits 61 in January... and 78 years young Charles Colburn is mad at the U.S. air force because he wasn't allowed to fly in a jet on the grounds that he's "too old."

Michael Wilding and Erika Beth Taylor are off to Mexico for a short vacation.

Spencer Tracy will play the Clarence Darrow role in Lancaster's movie production of "Inherit the Wind," with Burt in the Paul Hume part. Burt is also buying Shaw's "The Devil's Disciple."

On my way here I saw Charles Laughton plane into London from New York on a quick visit. No one at the airport recognized Charles because he is so fat... I also bumped into Rhoda Fleming waiting to meet husband Dr. Lew Murrill.

Ava Gardner and Frank Sinatra will meet in Madrid to discuss their future when he goes to Spain to do his picture for Stanley Kramer.

At His Best as Grannie

This pleasant-looking individual is about to become a grandmother, on stage. He's English comedian Norman Evans, a hit as "Grandmother" in his "Over the Garden Wall" act in the London Music Hall Revue at the Royal Theatre tomorrow and Tuesday evenings. Co-stars are Scottish comic Alec Finlay, "Two-Ton" Tessie O'Shea, comedienne Betty Jumel, singer Alistair McHarg and the dancing Granger brothers.

Entertainment Parade Victoria 'Dam Buster' To Appear for Film

BY BRUCE LOWTHER

"Two-Ton" Tessie O'Shea, Alec Finlay, RCAF night at "The Dam Busters," the Amadeus quartet and "Two Dozen Red Roses," entertainment program for the week in Victoria.

Variety Club of Toronto, which brought George Formby and Tommy Trinder to Victoria in recent years, is bringing the London Music Hall Revue to the Royal Theatre tomorrow and Tuesday evenings.

Stars are the four comedians—Alec Finlay, Tessie O'Shea, Norman Evans and Betty Jumel, who keep things hopping for more than two hours.

As the Atlas Theatre opens "The Dam Busters" tomorrow, 150 officers and men of 2455 Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron will parade to the theatre at 7:45 p.m. An air force pilot who took part in the bombing raids depicted in the film will be interviewed on stage by manager Martin Cave at 9:15 p.m.

Mr. Cave's Dominion, incidentally, has Martine Carol and Dawn Addams featured in "The Best" and Jacques Tati's "The Big Day" later this month.

Still another Monday feature pianist Lloyd Powell will give a Beethoven lecture-recital in the Art Gallery tomorrow evening. Exhibitions of works by six Edinburgh painters and by Japanese children will continue at the gallery.

Chamber music apparently is popular in Victoria. The women's committee of the Victoria Symphony Society and the Art Gallery report that tickets are selling quickly for the appearance of the Amadeus quartet at Victoria High school Wednesday.

The four outstanding musicians from London, England, have chosen an excellent program.

The 1955-56 Audubon Screen Tour series begins in Oak Bay Junior high school auditorium Wednesday evening, when Tom and Arlene Hadley of Holly, Mich., present the film, "Into the North Woods."

Langham Court Theatre comes alive again Saturday with "Two Dozen Red Roses," second play of the season for the Victoria Theatre Guild. The comedy, set in modern Italy and directed by Tommy Mayne, will continue each evening until Nov. 12.

A stunning new recording of Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition" is the chief item on the Recorded Music Society's high-fidelity program at the Fox Theatre a week from today.

Technically, the Decca recording by Igor Markevitch and the Berlin Philharmonic is flawless.

Henry Stubbings will also present two opposites, "Songs of the West," by the Norman Luboff choir, and the percussive dancing of the Spanish "Jose Greco" ballet.

Rubloff will play new arrangements for violin of "War-saw Concerto" and "Rhapsody in Blue" when he appears at Central Junior high school auditorium on the evening of Nov. 21.

Hell appear at several secondary schools that morning, and in S. J. Willis school at 3:30 p.m.

Within the Boy Scouts of Greater Victoria, a Red Feather agency, are 38 Scout troops, 58 Cub packs and three Rover crews, with no restrictions as to race, color or creed.

Musicians Prepare Two Jazz Concerts

Victoria's reputation as a "graveyard of jazz" is about to be disproved by Gordon King and Robert Rhodes at two concerts during the coming month.

Mr. King's 10-piece Victoria Chamber Jazz Orchestra is giving the Art Gallery at 8:15 p.m., Friday.

Mr. Rhodes, whose recent modern jazz concert sold out at Club Tango, will present the second of his series at the same place at 8:30 p.m., Nov. 18, but this time the idiom is Dixieland.

Arrangements and compositions for the Art Gallery show are by Mr. King and pianist Buddy Glover, with a "kind of drum concerto" by Wally Grieve and a new tenor saxophonist, Bob Boal.

Tickets are limited to 160, and are being sold at Ward's Music, B.C. Sound and Victoria Music Centre. Proceeds will pay for further concerts by the same group.

Personnel for the Dixieland "hash" will be drummer Grieve, pianist Glover, Bernie Porter, trumpet; Bill Heybroek, clarinet; Jack Kraelling, trombone; and Don Hardisty, bass. Ticket sales are at Ward's Music and Ring Foster's store.

City Girl To Star In 'Trial'

"Trial By Jury," forthcoming presentation of Victoria Gilbert and Sullivan Operatic Society, features a Victorian in her first lead role.

Kitty Dixon, who plays the plaintiff, Angelina, is no stranger to city music circles. She has been singing most of her life and appeared in several Greater Victoria music festivals while still a student at Esquimalt High school.

She toured England in 1952 as a member of the famed Edgar choir. Now, she is continuing vocal studies with Roberto Wood.

A business transfer has caused a change among the principals of "Trial By Jury," to be presented with other Gilbert and Sullivan excerpts at Oak Bay Junior High school Nov. 17, 18 and 19.

Alan Robertson has moved to Vancouver and his role as counsel for the plaintiff will be sung by John Bray, who in turn will be replaced as foreman of the jury by Harold Russell.

Norman Tyrell, the defendant, is making his first appearance here since his return from California. He appeared in the first Gilbert and Sullivan Society show here nine years ago.

Program Notes Players Conquer All Obstacles

This is another in a series of articles on Victoria musical and theatrical groups, appearing in The Daily Colonist each Sunday.

By H. B. BINNY

Although their small membership lives in a fairly scattered area and their theatrical facilities are limited, the Peninsula Players of North Saanich have an enviable record and reputation after only two seasons.

GOOD BEGINNING

Their first Dominion Drama Festival entry, in 1951, "Tail of a Fox" selected as an honor play in Victoria. This year, they produced two entries, one an original by member W. S. Harrison and the other Sir James Barrie's "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," produced by Clement May.

It is most noteworthy that the Peninsula Players have shown the capacity to entertain their audiences so well that such difficulties as a small stage are overcome.

This is to the unending credit of the players, who enter into their parts with sufficient wholeheartedness that they, too, forget mechanical handicaps.

President this year is Michael Rothery. Frank Watts is secretary.

Cadets, Bays To Meet Today

Royal Roads cadets will be out to consolidate their grip on second place when they meet Oak Bay in a Victoria Junior Canadian Football League clash at Macdonald park this afternoon.

The cadets, who own a 4-1 record in league play this season, scored a 25-0 victory in their first clash with Oak Bay but could be in for a tougher argument today.

WILLIAMS OIL-O-MATIC OIL BURNER

LOW PRESSURE PRINCIPLE (that 1 to 2 lbs. standing pressure) ASSURES MORE HEAT FROM LESS FUEL OIL!

Oil and air are scientifically mixed at low pressure for better combustion. That means more heat per gallon and money in your pocket. ALSO, Oil-O-Matic Oil Burners have a close-proof oil nozzle and burn with ease those better, but harder to burn new catalytic fuel oils. Remember this important fact: with hundreds of makes to choose from, EVERY EIGHTH OIL BURNER IS AN OIL-O-MATIC! Come in today for details.

Cedar Lining for Clothes Closets Simple, Attractive Moth Barrier

The homeowner can easily line one or more closets with cedar to save costly moth damage. The job is simple and can be done in a few hours.

Remove shoe and baseboard before applying the cedar.

Start at the floor and use a level to check the horizontal position. Place cedar behind the baseboard to discourage moths from laying eggs in the crack between plaster and baseboard.

After the cedar is in place, use a hammer to fasten the baseboard. Seal the same to the floor.

Use small cedar moldings, such as shown in pictures X and Y, and remove all dust from the closet with a dry cloth. It is better to cover the inside of the door with cedar than any other material. Any closet with a door should be weather-stripped at the meeting edge.

If the door is not tight, it should be weather-stripped. These precautions will prevent moth damage. Cedar closets should be checked at all times.

Picture W shows a cutaway view of a closet with cedar lining. Picture Y shows how cedar lining can be applied to the plaster. Two-inch wide cedar will penetrate plaster and seal it.

Health Insurance Theme of Talks

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Martin hopes federal provincial talks on a national health insurance plan will be resumed here in December.

Plans are progressing favorably for the forthcoming international meeting of ministers on the subject of health insurance.

Mr. Martin now is in New York heading the Canadian Delegation at the United Nations.

The statement and a proposed agenda for the meeting, arranged at the recent federal-provincial conference in Ottawa, was approved two weeks ago by Mr. Martin and submitted to provincial premiers.

Prefabricated Houses Put Up Century Ago

By JAMES K. NESBITT

WE look upon prefabricated houses as something new. Yet, nearly a century ago, a man who became a leading citizen of Victoria made a small fortune with prefabricated houses during the California gold rush of 1849.

Leopold Lowenberg was the man, and one wonders if he didn't ship some of his prefabricated houses here, but, if he did, there's no mention of it in old newspapers and diaries.

The Lowenberg family was widely known in olden times. Leopold, it would appear, was a bachelor, he had two business partners, who were mentioned in the 1850s as a bachelor.

The Lowenberg family was on Rae Street, now Courthouse. It was what was known as those Leopold Lowenberg was a man of many talents. He was a successful businessman, a skilled craftsman, and a community leader. His contributions to the city of Victoria were significant.

Victoria's Handicapped Have Hope Of Forming Goodwill Unit

By MAURICE CORBETT

WHAT is a Goodwill Industry? One could be established in Victoria—and likely will be—if trail-blazer Fred Blakeney and his B.C. Handicap League see their dreams fulfilled. It could be a boon for Victoria and district as Goodwill provides jobs for everybody, no matter who, and benefits the community by reviving articles that are going to waste.

These are the dreams of the Goodwill League, which has been formed in Victoria. The league is a non-profit organization that aims to provide employment for the handicapped by reviving old goods.

Customers browse in the aisles of Seattle's Goodwill Industries store, which offers an outlet for work that brings a monthly payroll of about $22,000 to the Washington city. A similar plan is under consideration here.

Workers at the plant are given a good hot meal daily at noon and coffee and rolls before work each morning in the plant lunchroom. There is a canteen to them.

Other conditions can also be fortunately while for the main part skills necessary to the fastening of wooden ships become rather rare. At present there were still a number of men in and about Victoria, Esquimalt, who knew how to seal and mend timber to create "eyes" of vessels of wood on the shore of Victoria Harbor. One of the few who had been known as "Pumpkin" Warren's ship six years ago had produced extra strong looking wooden hulls early in this century. These were the only schooner type vessels that could be produced from the mills of the company to world markets.

After looking at the various types of furniture in the store, I found that the most popular was the simple, clean-lined, modern style. I was particularly interested in the new line of chairs, which were made of a light-colored wood and had a simple, elegant design. I was also impressed by the variety of colors and finishes available. The store had a large selection of fabrics and finishes, and the staff was very helpful in recommending the best options for my needs. I was able to find exactly what I was looking for, and I was very satisfied with the results. The store was a great place to shop, and I would definitely recommend it to anyone looking for high-quality furniture.

You are not alone.

The occasion was a visit to his customers to virtually de-lap after designer Seymour Troy a 37th Street, custom salon to see the new styles and to chat with Mr. Troy, a very eloquent man on the subject of footwear.

The topic was the vital importance of well and comfortable shoes, not only for appearance's sake but for general well-being. Devising to illustrate a point, Mr. Troy said "let me see your shoe."

Tsusiat Falls West Coast Beauty Spot

By GEORGE NICHOLSON

FOR combined beauty and grandeur, Tsuslat Falls might well be described as the finest natural water cascade on Vancouver Island. They are situated six miles west of the entrance to Nitinat Lake and originate in a stream which empties out of a small lake by the same name half a mile inland, and pour over an 80 foot-high cliff sheer down onto the beach. In a straight line they would be about 60 miles from Victoria.

As a result of the above, we can state that the proposed algorithm is able to find the optimal solution for the problem of the optimal control of the motion of a mechanical system with a variable mass, in the case of a piecewise constant control. The algorithm is implemented on a personal computer. The results of the calculations are presented in the figures.

Have Your Fun If It's Harmless

At least 10,000 people are expected to take part in the annual Halloween celebration in Victoria on Monday night. The celebration will be held in the city center, and will include a parade, bonfires, fireworks, and a variety of other activities. The celebration is organized by the Victoria branch of the DeMolay, and is a tradition that has been held for many years.

The witches and goblins will be out Monday night for sure, but outdoorsmen are making all preparations possible to see that pranksters have better things to do than get into trouble.

Hundreds of private parties, parties and dances are being held in the city center, and many people are expected to take part in the celebration.

Other areas of the city are also expected to be busy with the celebration, and many people are expected to take part in the activities.

The celebration is a tradition that has been held for many years, and is a time when people can have fun and enjoy the company of their friends and family.

Gorge Safe Soon

Three or four swimming beaches along the Gorge may be ready for use by next summer, Ald. Geoffrey I. Edgell, president of the Gorge Waterway Development Association, said last night.

Alderman Edgell said he had received an estimate of $1,000 from acting city engineer J. C. Bennett to put the R.C. Electric park beach in order for swimming.

The work would include dumping of sand to 20 feet below the low water mark and to 20 feet above the high water mark.

He said he had every hope that the R.C. Electric will be ready for use by next summer, and that the beach will be in good condition for the swimming season.

"I feel the Gorge water will be safe for swimming next summer in at least four areas," Alderman Edgell said.

He said he has discussed with the R.C. Electric the possibility of using a strip of abandoned beach on Portage inlet, bordering the Island highway just outside the Gorge boundary.

The plan would be to have the government lease the property to private enterprise for development for recreational use, including a tannery and boat house.

Other areas Alderman Edgell mentioned were the old playground school, where fill would be used to create a new park and beach, and the old Gorge waterway.

He said he hoped to have a float and diving board built to replace the old one that was used when the Gorge was considered safe for swimming.

Alderman Edgell said that when he speaks to the R.C. Electric, he will be able to provide the latest information on the Gorge waterway.

Hospital Vote Possible This Year, Says Casey

Ratepayers of Victoria, Saanich still may vote in $140,000 addition to Royal Jubilee hospital.

Reese Joseph Casey, of Saanich, chairman of the hospital board, disclosed last night that a proposal on distribution of the $250,000 municipal share has been sent to the city and the municipalities.

He declined to state details of the proposal "until they get the letters on Monday," but said there is "still enough time" to draw up by-law referendum which would be placed before the voters on municipal election day.

When the last study addition was first suggested early last year, hospital officials said it would have to be completed in five years to keep pace with the ever-increasing need for accommodation.

Federal and provincial governments are expected to bear approximately $800,000 of the total cost, and the hospital board will contribute another $250,000.

An arbitration officer was appointed some time ago to prepare the municipal share on an equitable basis, but Mr. Casey said yesterday that collection of some of the most important items of the study is being made.

At this stage of the drive a year ago $100,000 had been collected.

Vancouver Community Chest officials expressed concern yesterday because the drive in the city had been slow.

Worried officials reported that only $20,000 was collected in the past 21 months with the campaign already running a week overdue.

Contributions now stand at $169,297 in the Vancouver drive.

N. J. B. LEE, A. J. H. G. DILLI, and J. A. J. H. G. DILLI, Journal of Polymer Science: Part A: Polymer Chemistry, 33, 1031 (1995). This article reports on the synthesis of a novel poly(arylene ether sulfone) (PAES) with a pendant phenyl group. The polymer was synthesized by the polycondensation of 4,4'-dihydroxydiphenyl ether and 4,4'-dichlorodiphenyl ether in the presence of a base. The polymer was characterized by ¹H NMR, IR, and elemental analysis. The polymer was found to have a high glass transition temperature (T_g) of 280°C and a high thermal stability. The polymer was also found to have a high dielectric constant (ε_r) of 3.5 and a low dielectric loss (tan δ) of 0.02. The polymer was used as a dielectric material in a microelectronic device.

The IIRB is again being the focus of the annual eight-week youth training camps sponsored by the federal department of labour and the IIRB education program in January and February.

Open to rural and urban youth between 16 and 30, the course is designed to increase leadership training, stimulate interest in community affairs and reinforce contacts with various federal, provincial and private sector employers.

Persons (passing to college) in the course must register now through the IIRB extension department.

Extending from Jan. 9 to March 2, the course offers instruction in agriculture, commercial fishing, home-making, handicrafts, recreation and rural organization.

Transportation is included in the $30 course fee. Students must not be enrolled at the time in public school. Application may be made to Agricultural Services, Extension Department, University of British Columbia, Vancouver 8.

There must have been a former advertising man aboard this RCN helicopter when it landed on an Arctic ice floe. Some so much blank space, he wrote the name of his ship and showed some artistic talent, then hovered above to admire his handiwork. The helicopter is from HMCS Labrador, which has been on radar station duty in the Arctic since June 1979. (Press Canada)

Convention Cheers Prediction

Socreds Can Capture Ottawa In 1957, Low Tells Party

BY RAY BAINES
(Colonist Staff Reporter)

VANCOUVER—The Social Credit party can elect a government in Ottawa in 1957 because "it's there for the taking," national Social Credit leader Solon said last night.

The fiery Socred leader spoke to more than 650 B.C. Social Crediters, winding up their two-day convention here with a huge banquet in the Vancouver hotel.

"We are going to make a right good effort to get it in there in 1957," Mr. Low told the cheering Socreds. "If we fall in the next few years to install a Social Credit government in Ottawa it will be because we fall in our duty. It's there for the taking."

At one point, Mr. Low once more brought up the leadership question, naming Premier W.

A. C. Bennett as a possible alternative to himself. He said that the question of leadership would be decided at a national convention.

"I have never stopped to worry about who will have the leadership," he said. "I have never stopped to think about becoming the prime minister, or Mr. Bennett becoming prime minister. The people of this movement will select their leader."

He then said that Social Credit's political enemies were trying to "sow the seeds of distrust" by suggesting a split between the two of them.

"They are saying 'Watch out, Mr. Bennett wants to be prime minister,'" Mr. Low said. (At this point Premier Bennett threw back his head and laughed heartily.)

Earlier Premier Bennett said a Social Credit government would not only be elected soon in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, but that "Mr. Low will be elected prime minister of Canada."

In the main body of his address, Mr. Low called Social Credit "the greatest movement ever conceived on this earth outside of the movement of Christianity itself."

He said farmers, labor and industry had "lost hope in the Liberal government" and that the only difference between the Liberals and Conservatives was that "one is in and the other is out trying to get in."

He said the present government was typical of the "old line of politics of the pork barrel, patronage and skulduggery."

"It is not democracy, it is autocracy," he said. "And Social Credit is determined to tip the autocracy from its throne."

At one point he outlined a six-point manifesto, which he said Social Credit could offer as an alternative to the present system. It included a new agricultural policy to give farmers 20 per cent of the national income, a new concept of Dominion Provincial Relations, a new kind of resources development, a new concept in social security, a new financial and economic system

"to free people from the slavery of debt," and a new and different idea of political organization, based on principles and integrity.

Earlier B.C. Social Credit League president Noel Murphy called Social Credit "the greatest revolution in human thinking since 1838" when Britain was given the franchise.

Both Premier Bennett and Mr. Low were given a standing ovation by the large crowd of Socreds.

Football Dandy—So Were Girls

STANFORD, Calif. (UP)—Seven touring Russian journalists saw their first game of American football yesterday, a lopsided 34 to 18 victory by Stanford University over San Jose State College, and commented they were "excited and impressed with the very good show."

Leader of the group, Boris Kampov-Polevoy said he thought the game quite similar to British football, or rugby, and said he was impressed by the crowd's cheering almost as much as by the game itself.

Observers noted that the Russians appeared more enthusiastic over the girl cheer leaders than the loosely-played game. Like many others in the crowd of 33,000, they trained their field glasses on the girls during much of the first half.

Kampov-Polevoy said he was surprised that the pompadour girls were students and added, they were "very pretty."

The journalists ended the afternoon with a visit to the Hoover Institute of War, Revolution and Peace, a tower several stories high with one of the country's finest collections of history and rare books.

From the high vantage point, Boris Izakov, another member of the group, caught sight of thousands of cars parked by the stadium and commented that American cars were "better" than the Soviet product and that the U.S. has a great many more than Russia.

Saar Names New Premier

SAARBRUECKEN (AP)—Heinrich Welsch, a 67-year-old railroad man, was named caretaker premier of the Saar by its parliament today. His selection represented a compromise between pro-German parties and the groups which control the present parliament.

Fastest-Growing Area

Projects Sprouting Along New Outlet Worth $8,000,000

$1,500,000 Shop Centre Is Latest Development

BY ALEC MERRIMAN

Construction projects valued at more than $8,000,000 have either started or are projected on property bordering the Island highway between Tillicum and Admirals roads.

It makes this area the fastest-growing part of Saanich, which has been called Canada's fastest-growing municipality.

Latest plan for the area is a $1,500,000 shopping centre to include a Safeway store and about 25 other stores, but lack of an access road from the new highway and a sewage disposal system may hinder this development.

Other projects include 240 homes in the Westview subdivision, valued at $2,550,000; the $750,000 Colquitz junior high school now under construction; a $100,000 auto court proposed by Morris Kersey; a $1,000,000 forest laboratory which the federal government may build; a Standard Oil service station at the corner of Tillicum and the Island highway, which is already started; and an Imperial Oil service station at the corner of Interurban and Burnside.

The Rowland Height subdivision in the area has 125 new homes and a new Terrace service station has been built at the Burnside intersection.

To serve the rapidly expanding area, Saanich is considering building an $80,000 sewage disposal system on Colquitz creek on property already set aside for that purpose.

Main promotion of the area is being undertaken by Capital Land Developments Ltd., which owns 230 acres from Tillicum to Admirals on both sides of the highway.

Joe McAllister, president of the company, told The Daily Colonist last night that the provincial government turned down an application for access roads off the highway.

The company will seek the aid of Saanich council in persuading the provincial government to allow the roads.

Mr. McAllister explained that he felt the new highway actually started when it left Saanich and that up to that point it should be developed as a part of Saanich municipality.

Saanich council will also have to approve rezoning of the property if a shopping centre is to be built, but little difficulty is foreseen.

Cypriots Stone British

FAMAGUSTA, Cyprus (Reuters)

Two thousand students, shrieking anti-British slogans and demanding "Enosis" union with Greece today threw stones at British troops in this port city.

Troops and police took up positions outside two schools as students streamed out of their classrooms in a demonstration of protest against military intervention in similar demonstrations Friday.

One soldier was slightly injured. A bomb was thrown at a British military vehicle outside Paphos during the night but did not explode, authorities said.

A curfew in force at Limassol Friday was lifted today and will not be reimposed unless further incidents occur, British officials said.

Middle East Dangerous

Truman Says

CHICAGO (UP)—Former

president Harry Truman said last night "an atomic war is unthinkable," but "we may find ourselves in World War III sooner than we think" unless a solution is found to disturbed conditions in the Middle East.

Mr. Truman said he was very alarmed about the Middle East situation today, especially the controversy between Greece and Turkey.

He lashed out at the Republican administration for failing to take steps in the Middle East which would bring a halt to the bitter nationalist rivalries.

"I am sorry that the people in Washington did not see fit to place the blame for the trouble between the Greeks and Turks where it belongs, and do something about it," Mr. Truman said.

Canada Needs Bill of Rights

Coldwell Says

PRINCE RUPERT, B.C. (CP)—

M. J. Coldwell, national CCF leader, said last night a bill of rights should be written into Canada's constitution to protect individual freedoms.

Mr. Coldwell said at a public meeting that it is dangerous for Canadians to think that curtailments of rights and freedoms that have taken place in other countries can't happen in Canada.

Property Purchased

Safeway has already purchased property at the Tillicum and Burnside end of the land, on which it plans to build a $500,000 store.

Capital Land Developments has optioned 2 acres, adjacent to the Safeway site and behind the Tillicum Outdoor Theatre, to two unnamed persons, who are understood to be planning a $1,000,000 shopping centre.

On this property would be 20 to 25 stores of all varieties, including doctors' and dentists' offices, a bank and other services.

The plan would be to have a one-way access road off the Island Highway through the shopping centre to the Safeway store to Burnside road.

This would eliminate use of the dangerous Burnside intersection by shoppers.

Plans have not yet been made for use of the remaining 36 acres of property along the south side of the highway to Admirals road, but Mr. McAllister said it was planned to develop it as commercial property.

A good start has been made on the Westview subdivision, with about 70 of the houses either completed or under construction. These are being built by private individuals, and by contractors for resale.

Schumack and Riehl, Vancouver contractors, recently purchased about 15 lots in the subdivision.

The new 500-pupil Colquitz school is going built on 14 acres of the property.

Saanich council Monday night will consider an application from Morris Kersey for rezoning of property at Burnside and Interurban roads for a 10-unit, or larger, auto court. Mr. Kersey hopes to start work on the court in January and have it open in April.

The $1,000,000 federal forest laboratory is still in doubt. There has been talk of building it in Vancouver instead.

Mr. McAllister said last night he hoped Saanich would install a sewage disposal plant to serve the area.

"You can't put commercial property there until you have a way to dispose of the waste," he said.

He said a sewage system would be "a help to everyone in the area" and would serve all the Interurban road and Rowland Heights area, the new school and Westview subdivision.

Saanich council has already set aside property for a sewage disposal plant to cost about $80,000, and will likely discuss the question Monday night.

Molotov Under Fire

Anti-NATO Pact Rejected by West

GENEVA—The Western powers Saturday night rejected Russia's anti-NATO pact for "collective European security" as a peril to the West.

Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov came under heavy criticism at the Big Four foreign ministers' conference on the charge his proposals would "deceive the hopes of the world."

U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles told the Russian diplomat his attempt to push through a security pact while delaying any effort to achieve German unification was in violation of directives the summit conference laid down three months ago.

Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay of France protested that Molotov's security pact continues to be aimed at the dissolution of NATO, the Atlantic defence alliance.

"The French government will not gamble with security, or do deals about it," Pinay declared. Despite 7½ hours of debate in three sessions since Thursday, Russia and the West have made no dent in Europe's status quo.

Russia will not roll back from the Elbe line—the cold war front in mid-Germany for 10 years.

The West will not bargain on the dismantling of the Atlantic alliance, in which more than 400,000 U.S. troops and airmen are committed overseas.

Russia will not risk a unifying German election that could put anti-Communists in control of that powerful nation of 70 million.

The West will make no deal for German unification that would concede in advance the military neutralization of all Germany. It has two-thirds of Germany arming in NATO now.

Socreds Unanimously Against Fluoridation

By Colonist Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—The B.C. Social Credit League made it clear yesterday that it is unanimous on one subject—its hearty disapproval of fluoridation.

The convention unanimously endorsed a resolution calling for a plebiscite for any municipality wishing to fluoridate its water, requiring a 60 per cent majority and six months' notice.

One delegate said fluoridation was "socialized medicine in the extreme."

Victoria MLA Lydia Arsenault was right in the thick of the discussion, one of her favorite topics.

She said fluorides had a "detrimental effect on the minds and bodies of the consumers" and what she particularly didn't like was the "undemocratic, dictatorial phase of this vicious propaganda."

Free Hunting Licences Urged for Blind Pensioners

By Colonist Staff Reporter

VANCOUVER—Social Crediters in convention here yesterday endorsed a resolution urging free hunting licences to blind pensioners.

This was only part of the resolution. It resolved that the government "grant free hunting and/or fishing licences to applicants who are old-age, handicapped or blind pensioners."

One delegate said he hoped

"the blind hunters had seeing-eye hunting dogs."

The mover explained that so far as the blind were concerned, the resolution was intended really to provide them with free fishing licences, a pastime which many enjoyed.

For Blast at Pop

Socreds Unanimously Against Fluoridation

Another said that if the exponents were sincere, they would have "made some other arrangement" to add the fluorides to salt or soft drinks.

This led a woman delegate to denounce soft drinks and the companies which produce them. She said that if "you take a human tooth and drop it into a bottle of pop, it will take the enamel off."
